COLLEGE SENATE REPORT

President Kurtinitis invited Senate Chair Michael Yashinski to share information about the College Senate's recent activities.

The Curriculum and Instruction Committee (CIC) has processed and approved seven new courses and six course revisions over the last two months. Last month, the senate passed a Whistleblower Protection Policy developed by the Professional Affairs Committee that would utilize a third-party service to report and investigate serious concerns. This policy was presented to senior staff on December 3, 2024, and will be refined to ensure that there are appropriate guardrails in place for everyone's protection and benefit.

The Professional Affairs Committee (PAC) has reviewed the edits that the Board of Trustees proposed for the grievance process, and they found the changes to be in the best interest of the college. In addition, PAC is also working on a charge related to the make up of grievance committees, and is close to completing the establishment of a tuition waiver for part-time employees, including staff and adjunct faculty.

The Academic Standards Committee is working on a policy regarding the ethical use of artificial intelligence (AI) by faculty and students in courses, to establish college-wide guidelines on how to use—or not use—AI tools.

The College Environmental, Student, and Community Affairs Committee (CESCA) is reviewing the college's Demonstrations Policy and is investigating the idea of requiring visible identification badges for security purposes. CESCA plans to meet with the student body and Public Safety regarding this idea.

The Senate Executive Committee has requested assistance from the leadership of the Culturally Responsive Teaching and Learning program to help provide senators with a framework for evaluating college policies through an equity lens.

In November, Student Government leaders introduced on the senate floor the idea of a medical leave policy. As this idea develops into charges, student representation will be kept involved in the process.
